Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Ford entertained last Saturday night by giving a Valentine party. A large crowd was present. The parlor was beautifully decorated with red hearts and etc Many games were introduced such as drawing partners to play the games Best of all a prize was to be given the person who could take a dagger and pierce the center of a big heart which was pinned to the wall, after being blind folded and turned around three times, a number of steps from this heart. The successful one was not present, so no prize could be awarded. As the old saying goes "The joke always falls on someone at a Valentine party. So this young lady had danced all night the night before, and was so amazed at Dan Cupid's heart piercing, she looked for 15 minutes when she got ready to leave, for a brown wrap when she wore a black one Let's work on her heart, Also a young fellow was heard ask a girl if she would stick to him through thick and thin, like lasses to a nigger's chin ha! ha! Everyone left wishing Mr. and Mrs. Ford would entertain again soon.

Deserted Appomattox Farm Made to Blossom as Rose

(By R. T. Harrison, Agrl. Agent Peoples Nat. Bank.)

M. C. Smith came to Appomattox in the spring of 1906 from Frederick Maryland, and purchased a farm one and a half miles north of the town of Appomattox, consisting of 261 acres for which he paid $3,500, which was considered by neighbors a very high price for the farm in its low state of cultivation Many of these neighbors now laugh and tell Mr Smith that at the time he moved on the place they gave him only three years in which to become disgusted and move away.

This farm in previous years had been cultivated under the tenant system; not in the past sixteen years had it been given any attention along the line of improvement. The fields were grown over with small shrubs, briars and grape vines. Mr. Smith frankly stated that there was not as much as one half acre that did not require grubbing before it could be cultivated successfully

HOW HE STARTED

It was necessary to clean off the ground before a plow could be started. After getting the outer edges of the fields sufficiently clean of shrubbery he started one plow, but it required three boys to keep up the clearing ahead of this one plow. In this way he kept at the task until he had succeeded in getting some twenty or thirty acres in shape for corn.

The second year he succeeded in getting twenty acres more ready for corn, seeded the first year's clearing to wheat and oats; used one ton of burnt lime to the acre on both first and second years' clearings. In the spring of the second year seeded all wheat and oat land to grass; mixture red clover, timothy and herds grass, one third each. This method was continued for several years, making use of a three-year rotation, corn, wheat, oats and grass, then back to corn, until he had succeeded in getting the most of the open land on the farm under cultivation using burnt lime at the rate of one ton to the acre on each clearing.

The succeeding year brought Mr. Smith much encouragement as the land that at first only produced three barrels of corn and seven bushels of wheat to the acre, was now showing a gradual increase. By the use of the lime he had succeeded in getting legume crops to grow successfully. From the beginning he had used a normal supply of commercial fertilizer on both wheat and corn, but only for a few years did he find it profitable to use it on his corn, so then he confined the use of it to his small grain and grasses. Green manure crops were made use of to supply the soil with humus, which kept increasing his crop yields.

It was now necessary for him to open up more land as up to this time he had only one hundred acres which was available for pasture and cultivation. He proceeded to remove the heavy timber from certain other parts of the farm and in a few years he had succeeded in getting some eighty acres more added to his producing soil. It was also necessary for him to make other improvements as there were no buildings on the place except a small dwelling and stable, both of which were in poor condition By this time he had introduced some live stock and they had to be sheltered.

With about one hundred and eighty acres of open land Mr. Smith has divided it into eight shifts, or in other words, he has eight fields which enables him to practice crop rotations to suit himself. The principal rotation now used is as follows: (1) corn, (2) wheat or oats, for two years, (3) grass for two years, then back to corn on sixth year, which is a five year rotation. The writer does not agree with Mr. Smith in the matter of planting the land to wheat or oats for two years, as this throws three grain crops together, but, however, this practice is followed by many good farmers who are satisfied with results.

APPLES AND PEACHES

Mr. Smith has not overlooked an orchard in his effort to improve his place. He now has a fine apple and peach orchard; apples four years in bearing and peaches seven years He takes good care of his trees and is now producing a good commercial type of both.

As I have previously stated, this farm had been worked under the tenant system; the plowing had been done shallow and at a uniform depth, hereby forming a hard-pan or plow furrow only a few inches below the surface. Mr. Smith realized that the soil could not hold a sufficient amount of moisture to nurish the crop if plowed at that shallow depth, so he proceeded to put three horses to his plow to insure a good quality of plowing, but was careful not to turn up too much of the subsoil at one

Why Suffer?

Cardui "Did Wonders for Me," Declares This Lady.

"I suffered for a long time with womanly weakness," says Mrs. J. R Simpson, of 57 Spruce St., Asheville, N. C. "I finally got to the place where it was an effort for me to go. I would have bearing-down pains in my side and back — especially severe across my back, and down in my side there was a great deal of soreness. I was nervous and easily upset.

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"I heard of Cardui and decided to use it," continues Mrs. Simpson. "I saw shortly it was benefiting me, so I kept it up and it did wonders for me. And since then I have been glad to praise Cardui. It is the best woman's tonic made." Weak women need a tonic. Thousands and thousands, like Mrs. Simpson, have found Cardui of benefit to them. Try Cardui for your trouble.
